Food and shopping: some and any

Nombre: _____ Fecha: _____

Qué vas a aprender

- Learn food words and containers (a bottle of, a packet of)
- Use some in affirmative sentences and any in negatives and questions
- Ask for things in a shop politely
- Ask and answer about prices with How much is it?

Para pensar

Vas a una tienda en Inglaterra. Quieres comprar manzanas, pero no sabes cuántas hay. ¿Cómo preguntarías «¿Hay manzanas?»?

Explicación

Food words

Let's review some food: apples, bananas, oranges, tomatoes, carrots, potatoes, eggs, bread (pan), cheese (queso), milk (leche), water, juice (zumo), rice (arroz), pasta, chicken (pollo), fish and meat (carne).

Some food words have a plural with -s: one apple, two apples; one tomato, three tomatoes. Others don't, like bread, milk, rice or water: we can't count them one by one. En castellano: pasa igual en español: no decimos «tres arroces».

A, an or some?

For one thing we can count, we use a or an: a banana, a carrot, an apple, an egg (we use an before a vowel sound: a, e, i, o, u).

For more than one thing, or for things we can't count, we use some: some bananas, some eggs, some bread, some milk. En castellano: some es «unos», «unas» o «un poco de». «I've got some cheese» = «Tengo (un poco de) queso». Muchas veces en español ni lo traducimos.

Word	Example
a	a banana · a carrot
an	an apple · an egg
some	some eggs · some milk

Some in affirmative sentences

We use some in affirmative sentences (frases afirmativas): «There are some oranges in the fridge», «I've got some sandwiches for the trip», «We need some water».

We also use some when we offer or ask for something politely: «Would you like some cake?» (¿quieres un poco de pastel?), «Can I have some juice, please?». Consejo: en estas preguntas usamos some porque esperamos que la respuesta sea «sí».

Any in negatives and questions

We use any in negative sentences and in questions: «There aren't any bananas» (no hay plátanos), «I haven't got any money» (no tengo dinero), «Is there any milk?», «Are there any eggs?».

Remember the short answers: «Yes, there is. / No, there isn't.», «Yes, there are. / No, there aren't.». En castellano: en las negativas any equivale a «nada de» o «ningún»: «There isn't any bread» = «No hay (nada de) pan».

Containers and quantities

To buy food we often use containers (envases): a bottle of water (una botella de agua), a carton of milk (un brik de leche), a packet of biscuits (un paquete de galletas), a tin of tuna (una lata de atún), a jar of jam (un tarro de mermelada), a bag of potatoes (una bolsa de patatas), a loaf of bread (una barra de pan).

We also use weights: a kilo of apples, half a kilo of cheese. Don't forget the word of in the middle!

At the shop: asking politely

In a shop, the shop assistant (dependiente) says: «Can I help you?» or «What would you like?». You answer: «Can I have a kilo of tomatoes, please?» or «I'd like some bread, please».

At the end you say «That's all, thank you» (eso es todo). En castellano: en inglés es muy importante decir please y thank you. Pedir algo sin «please» suena maleducado, aunque en español a veces digamos solo «Ponme un kilo de tomates».

How much is it?

To ask the price, we say: « How much is it? » (¿cuánto es?) for one thing, and «How much are they?» for more than one. The answer: «It's two euros», «They're one euro fifty».

Prices in English: €3.50 is «three euros fifty»; £1.20 is «one pound twenty». En castellano: en inglés los decimales se escriben con punto, no con coma: 2.50, no 2,50. Y el símbolo de la moneda va delante: €5, £5, $5.

Reading: the picnic

Read: «Tomorrow Irene and her friends are going to have a picnic. Irene looks in the kitchen. There's some bread and there are some tomatoes. There's some cheese, but there isn't any ham. There aren't any crisps and there isn't any juice! She writes a shopping list: a packet of ham, two bags of crisps, a bottle of orange juice. At the shop she asks: "How much is it?" "It's six euros forty." "Here you are. Thank you!"»

What is there in the kitchen? What does Irene buy?

Let's practise: the class shop

Turn the classroom into a shop. Some students are shop assistants and others are customers. Make price labels and use toy food or pictures. Each customer has a shopping list and €10 in paper money.

Customer: «Good morning! Have you got any eggs?» Assistant: «Yes, we have. / Sorry, we haven't got any.» Customer: «Can I have some eggs, please? How much are they?». Consejo: recuerda: some para afirmar y pedir; any para preguntar si hay y para decir que no hay.

Some and any one thing	affirmative	negative	question

A / AN	SOME	ANY	ANY?
a banana an apple	There are some eggs. Can I have some...?	There isn't any milk. I haven't got any.	Are there any eggs? Is there any milk?

Ejercicios

1. Translate: pan, queso, leche, huevos.

2. Complete with a or an: ___ orange, ___ banana.

3. Complete: «There are ___ apples in the bag.» (some/any)

4. Complete: «Is there ___ juice?» (some/any)

5. Complete: «We haven't got ___ rice.» (some/any)

6. Translate: un paquete de galletas, una lata de atún.

7. How do you ask the price of one thing?

8. Say the price: €1.20.

9. Short answer (no): «Are there any bananas?»

10. Write your shopping list for a picnic (4 items).

Practica

1. «There are ___ tomatoes.»
   - A) any
   - B) a
   - C) some
2. «There isn't ___ water.»
   - A) any
   - B) some
   - C) a
3. «Are there ___ oranges?»
   - A) some
   - B) any
   - C) an
4. «___ egg»
   - A) a
   - B) an
   - C) some
5. «Can I have ___ juice, please?»
   - A) any
   - B) a
   - C) some
6. «Una botella de agua» is...
   - A) a bottle of water
   - B) a water bottle of
   - C) a bottle water
7. «¿Cuánto es?» is...
   - A) How many is it?
   - B) What price it is?
   - C) How much is it?
8. Which food can't we count?
   - A) carrot

B) rice

C) egg

9. €2.50 is...

A) two euros fifty

B) two fifty euros

C) two euros and half

10. What does a shop assistant say?

A) Can I help you?

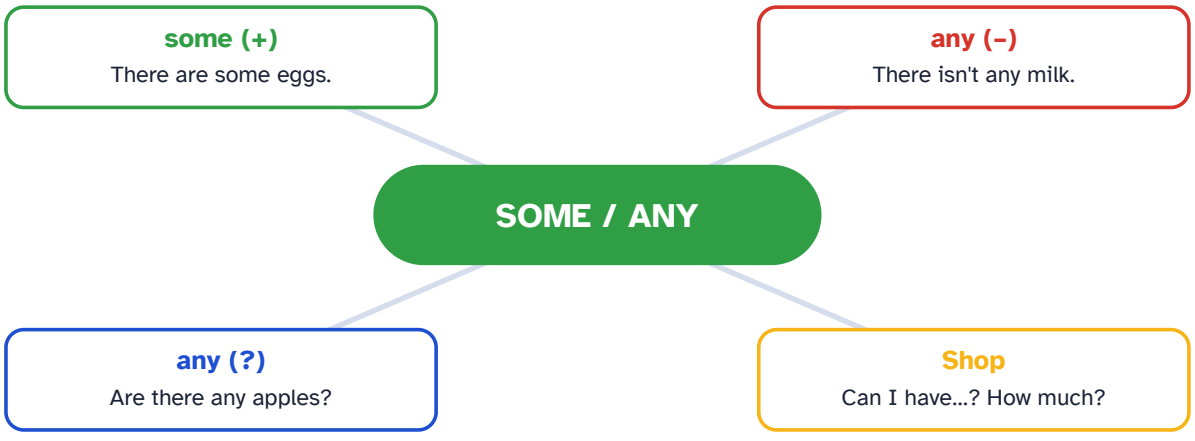

B) Can you help me?

C) How much are you?

Explícalo con tus palabras

Incluye: Qué comida se puede contar y cuál no; Cuándo se usa a, an y some; Cuándo se usa any; Cómo se pide algo y se pregunta el precio en una tienda.

Resumen

Tarjetas de repaso

Recórtalas: pregunta delante, respuesta detrás.

some

Algunos / un poco de (afirmativa).

any

Ningún / nada de (negativa) y algún (pregunta).

an apple

an delante de vocal.

a bottle of

Una botella de.

a packet of

Un paquete de.

Can I have..., please?

¿Me da..., por favor?

How much is it?

¿Cuánto es?

€2.50

two euros fifty.

Soluciones

1. C) Afirmativa: some.
2. A) Negativa: any.
3. B) Pregunta: any.
4. B) Vocal: an.
5. C) Pedir algo: some.
6. A) a bottle of.
7. C) How much.
8. B) rice.
9. A) Euros y luego céntimos.
10. A) ¿Le atiendo?

Soluciones de los ejercicios

1. bread, cheese, milk, eggs.
2. an, a.
3. some.
4. any.
5. any.
6. a packet of biscuits, a tin of tuna.
7. How much is it?
8. one euro twenty.
9. No, there aren't.
10. Model answer: a loaf of bread, some cheese, a bottle of water, a bag of apples.