Para pensar

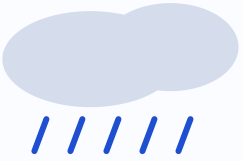

Tu madre te llama por teléfono y te pregunta «What are you doing?». ¿Qué te está preguntando y cómo le contestarías?

Explicación

Actions happening now

We use the present continuous for actions that are happening now, at this moment: «Look! It's raining», «Shh! The baby is sleeping», «I'm reading a great book».

It's different from the present simple, which is for habits: «I read every night» (costumbre) / «I'm reading now» (ahora). En castellano: es igual que «estoy leyendo», «está lloviendo». La terminación -ing equivale a nuestro -ando o -iendo: reading = leyendo, playing = jugando.

Look! It's raining.

now = ahora mismo

How to make it: be + -ing

The present continuous has two parts: the verb to be (am, is, are) + the main verb with -ing. «I am playing», «She is eating», «They are running».

We use am with I; is with he, she, it; and are with you, we, they. In conversation we use short forms: I'm, she's, they're. En castellano: to be hace el papel de «estar»: «I'm eating» = «estoy comiendo».

Person	be	-ing
I	am ('m)	playing
he/she/it	is ('s)	playing
you/we/they	are ('re)	playing

Spelling the -ing form

Most verbs just add -ing: read → reading, play → playing, cook → cooking. Verbs ending in -e lose the e: write → writing, dance → dancing, make → making.

Short verbs with consonant + vowel + consonant double the last letter: run → running, swim → swimming, sit → sitting, get → getting. Truco: si la palabra es corta y termina en consonante-vocal-consonante, ¡dobla la última letra!

Negative: I'm not...

To make a negative, put not after am, is or are: «I'm not sleeping», «He isn't watching TV» (is not), «We aren't playing» (are not).

It's very useful to correct someone: «I'm not sleeping, I'm thinking!», «She isn't crying, she's laughing!». En castellano: «no estoy durmiendo» → «I'm not sleeping». Fíjate en que con I no existe la forma «amn't»: decimos siempre I'm not.

Questions: What are you doing?

For questions, put am, is, are first: «Are you listening?», «Is she sleeping?». Short answers: «Yes, I am. / No, I'm not.», «Yes, she is. / No, she isn't.»

The most famous question is What are you doing? (¿Qué estás haciendo?). Also: «Where are you going?», «Who is she talking to?». En castellano: aquí no necesitamos do: el verbo to be ya hace de ayudante.

Time words: now, at the moment, look!

The present continuous often comes with now, right now, at the moment (en este momento) and today: «We're having lunch at the moment», «She's working at home today».

Also, when we want someone to see something, we say Look! or Listen!: «Look! The cat is climbing the tree!», «Listen! Someone is singing». Compare with the present simple time words: every day, usually, on Mondays. Pista: si ves now, piensa en -ing.

The present continuous is perfect to describe a picture or a photo. Look at the park: «A boy is flying a kite. Two girls are skipping (saltando a la comba). A man is walking his dog. A baby is sleeping in a pram. The sun is shining».

Start with In the picture or I can see: «In the picture, I can see a family. They are having a picnic». Consejo: usa is con una persona y are con dos o más.

Reading: a postcard from the beach

Read Paula's postcard: «Dear Grandma, I'm writing from the beach in Menorca! It's sunny and hot. Right now Mum is reading a book under the umbrella and Dad is swimming. My little brother is building a sandcastle. He isn't wearing his hat, oops! I'm eating a delicious ice cream. Some children are playing volleyball near us. We're having a great time! Love, Paula.»

Answer: What is Dad doing? Is her brother wearing his hat? What is Paula eating?

Let's practise: mime and guess

Play Mime and guess (mímica). One student picks a card with an action and mimes it in front of the class: brushing teeth, playing the piano, riding a horse, eating spaghetti... The class asks: «Are you swimming?» – «No, I'm not!» – «Are you dancing?» – «Yes, I am!».

Then the class says the full sentence: «She's dancing!». Consejo: fíjate en si preguntas a la persona («Are you...?») o hablas de ella al resto de la clase («She's... / He's...»).
