Tu amigo te dice que le duele la cabeza porque ha estado tres horas con la consola. ¿Qué consejo le darías en inglés?

Explicación

Healthy and unhealthy habits

A habit is something we do regularly. Healthy habits are good for our body and mind: eating fruit and vegetables, drinking water, sleeping well, doing exercise, washing our hands, brushing our teeth, spending time outdoors.

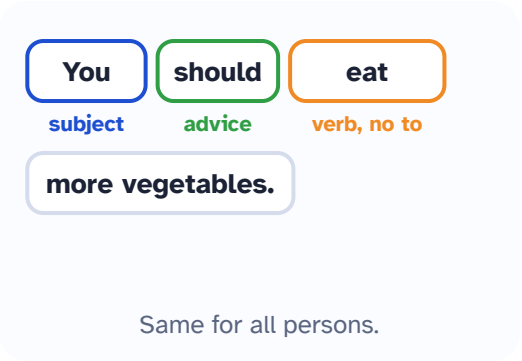

Unhealthy habits are bad for us: eating lots of sweets and fast food, drinking fizzy drinks, staying up late, sitting in front of a screen all day. En castellano: healthy es «sano» o «saludable», y unhealthy, lo contrario. El prefijo un- cambia el significado al opuesto.

Should for advice

We use should to give advice (consejos) or to say what is a good idea. The form is very easy: subject + should + verb (without to). «You should eat more vegetables.» «She should go to bed early.» «We should drink water when we play sports.»

Should is the same for all persons: I should, he should, they should. We never add -s («he shoulds») and we never use to after it («you should to eat»). En castellano: equivale a «deberías» o «sería bueno que».

Shouldn't: it's not a good idea

For the negative we use shouldn't (should not): «You shouldn't eat so many sweets.» «Children shouldn't sleep with the phone next to the bed.» «We shouldn't skip breakfast.»

We use it to say something is not a good idea. It is softer than an order. Compare: «Don't eat that!» (orden) and «You shouldn't eat that» (consejo). Pronunciación: should se dice «shud» (la l no suena) y shouldn't, «shúdnt».

What's the matter?

When someone looks ill, we ask What's the matter? (¿Qué te pasa?). They answer with I've got a... + problem: a headache (dolor de cabeza), a stomachache (de barriga), a toothache (de muelas), an earache (de oído), a sore throat (dolor de garganta), a cold (un resfriado), a cough (tos), a temperature (fiebre).

We can also say «I feel sick» (tengo náuseas) or «I'm tired». Truco: -ache significa «dolor» y se pronuncia «eik»: head-ache, stomach-ache.

English	Español
a headache	dolor de cabeza
a stomachache	dolor de barriga
a sore throat	dolor de garganta
a cold	un resfriado
a temperature	fiebre

Giving advice for illnesses

Now we can join both: the problem and the advice. «I've got a cold.» «You should stay in bed and drink hot milk with honey.» «I've got a toothache.» «You should go to the dentist. You shouldn't eat sweets.» «I've got a sore throat.» «You shouldn't shout or drink very cold drinks.»

If the problem is serious, the best advice is always: «You should see a doctor» or «You should tell an adult». Medicines are only for when a doctor or your family says so.

Asking for advice

To ask for advice we make a question: Should I...? or What should I do? «I'm always tired in class. What should I do?» «You should go to bed earlier.» «Should I take a jacket?» «Yes, you should. It's cold.» «No, you shouldn't.»

Other useful questions: «Do you think I should...?», «What do you think?». We can answer giving our opinion: «I think you should...», «I don't think you should...». These phrases make your advice sound kind and polite.

Ask	What should I do?
Ask	Should I take a jacket?
Answer	Yes, you should.
Opinion	I think you should rest.

A balanced diet

To be healthy we should eat a balanced diet: a bit of everything, in the right amount. We should eat fruit and vegetables every day (five portions!), cereals and bread for energy, fish, eggs, beans and meat for protein, and milk and yoghurt for strong bones.

We shouldn't eat too much sugar, salt or fried food. And remember: water is the best drink. Use the plate: half vegetables and fruit, a quarter cereals, a quarter protein.

Reading: Doctor Sara answers

Read this letter to a children's magazine: «Dear Doctor Sara, I'm eleven and I'm always tired. I go to bed at midnight because I watch videos on my tablet. I don't have breakfast because I'm not hungry. What should I do? — Marcos.»

«Dear Marcos, you should sleep at least nine hours, so you should go to bed at ten. You shouldn't use your tablet in bed: the light keeps your brain awake. You should have a small breakfast, like fruit and yoghurt. And you should play outside every day. Good luck! — Doctor Sara.»

Let's practise: advice cards

In pairs, write problem cards: «I can't sleep», «I've got a stomachache», «I'm always hungry at break», «My eyes hurt after the computer». Mix the cards. Take one and read it; your partner gives two pieces of advice, one with should and one with shouldn't.

Then make a class poster: «10 healthy habits for 5th grade». Start each line with We should or We shouldn't. Repaso: should + verbo sin to; nunca «shoulds»; pregunta con «Should I...?» o «What should I do?».
