Going to and will

Nombre: _____ Fecha: _____

Qué vas a aprender

- Talk about plans with going to (planes)
- Make predictions with will and with going to (predicciones)
- Use will for quick decisions and promises
- Make negatives and questions with both forms

Para pensar

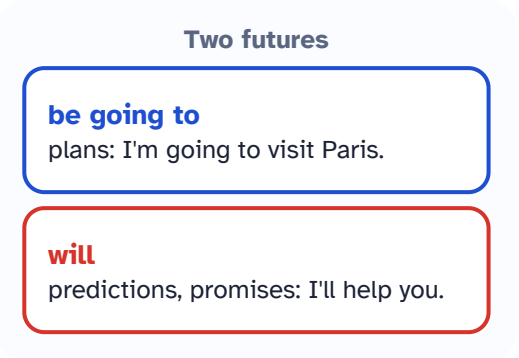

Si dices «el sábado voy a ir al cine» y «creo que mañana lloverá», ¿hablas del futuro de la misma manera?

Explicación

Two ways to talk about the future

In English we often use `be going to` for plans and intentions (things we decided before): «I'm going to visit my grandparents this weekend». We use `will` for predictions, quick decisions and promises: «I think it will be sunny», «I'll help you!».

En castellano: going to se parece a «ir a + infinitivo» («voy a visitar»), y will se parece al futuro («visitaré», «ayudaré»). No es una traducción exacta, pero ayuda mucho a recordarlo.

Going to: form

The form is: `am / is / are + going to + verb`. «I'm going to learn the guitar», «She's going to be a vet», «We're going to play a match on Sunday».

Negative: «I'm not going to watch TV tonight», «He isn't going to come». Question: «Are you going to buy a present?» – «Yes, I am. / No, I'm not». «What are you going to do at the weekend?». En castellano: fíjate en que el verbo to be cambia con la persona, igual que en el presente continuo.

Plans and evidence

We use going to for plans: «Next summer we're going to travel to Italy. We've got the tickets!». We also use it for predictions with evidence (cuando vemos una prueba ahora): «Look at those black clouds! It's going to rain», «Be careful! You're going to fall!».

En castellano: si ves algo que te hace estar casi seguro de lo que va a pasar (nubes negras, alguien que tropieza), usa going to.

Look at the clouds!
It's going to rain.

Will: form

The form of will is the same for all persons: will + verb. «I will go», «she will go», «they will go». The short form is 'll: I'll, you'll, she'll, we'll.

Negative: won't (will not): «It won't snow tomorrow». Question: «Will you come to my party?» – «Yes, I will. / No, I won't». Careful: after will the verb has no -s and no to: «she will play», not «she will plays» or «will to play».

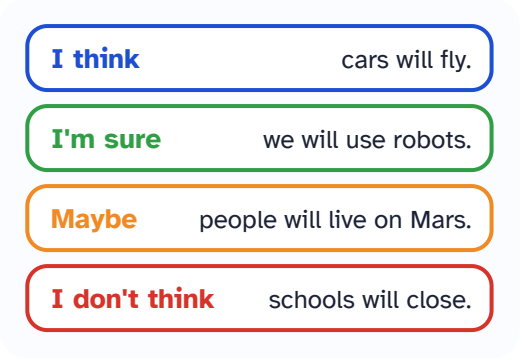

Form	Example
+	I'll call you.
–	It won't rain.
?	Will you come?

Will for predictions

We use will to say what we think or believe about the future, often with I think, I'm sure, probably, maybe: «I think Spain will win the match», «In 2050 people will probably travel in flying cars», «Maybe robots will do our homework!».

En castellano: son opiniones o adivinanzas, sin una prueba que estemos viendo. «I think...» = «creo que...». «I don't think it will rain» = «no creo que llueva».

Will for decisions and promises

We use will when we decide something at the moment of speaking (en el momento): «It's cold in here.» – «I'll close the window». «What would you like?» – «I'll have a sandwich, please».

We also use it for promises and offers (promesas y ofrecimientos): «I'll always be your friend», «Don't worry, I won't tell anyone», «Shall I help you?» – «Thank you!».

Going to or will?

Compare: «I'm going to study Medicine» (a plan, I decided it before) and «Oh, the phone! I'll answer it» (a decision now). «Look at the sky! It's going to snow» (evidence) and «I think it will snow at Christmas» (opinion).

Time words for the future: tomorrow, tonight, next week, next year, this weekend, in the future, soon, one day. En castellano: la palabra de tiempo no decide la forma; lo que decide es si es un plan, una prueba o una opinión.

Going to	Will
plans	predictions
evidence now	opinions
decided before	decided now promises

Reading: my plans for the future

Read Lucía's text: «Next year I'm going to start secondary school. I'm a bit nervous, but I think it will be fun. I'm going to join the school choir because I love singing. When I grow up, I'm going to be a marine biologist. I'll study dolphins and whales. I'm sure the oceans will need our help, so I won't stop fighting for them. Maybe one day I'll live on a boat!»

plan	I'm going to start secondary.
plan	I'm going to join the choir.
prediction	It will be fun.
promise	I won't stop fighting.

Let's practise: my future box

Write a «future box» (una caja del futuro) to open at the end of secondary school. Write three plans with going to and three predictions with will: «Next summer I'm going to learn to surf», «I think I'll be taller than my dad».

Then interview a partner: «What are you going to do this weekend?», «Do you think you'll live in another country?». Consejo: pregunta con Are you going to…? para planes y con Will you…? o Do you think you'll…? para predicciones.

Iván: Plans for the weekend?

Sofía: I'm going to visit my aunt.

Iván: Do you think you'll live abroad?

Sofía: Maybe! I'll travel a lot.
